Photograph, Color; Personal horizontal image of a Marine, Wilfred L'Esperance, sitting in front of a set of lockers while writing a letter. He is wearing a utility uniform with black boots. L'Esperance is light skinned and has a close cropped haircut. He is looking down into his lap where he is writing on a notepad. There are letters visible on the floor next to him. Next to him is a large white bag, possibly of laundry. The ship equipment next to the lockers has the front panel open. There is a white border around the image. Back reads "Notice the hair cut // one every week just for drill" handwritten in black ink.
